How many diapers of each size?

A baby's first year, size by size.

Newborn	Size 1	Size 2	Size 3
300–350	500–600	650–850	1,150–1,500
diapers	diapers	diapers	diapers
The first month Up to 10 lb	1–3 months 8–14 lb	3–6 months 12–18 lb	6–12 months 16–28 lb

One drawn diaper stands for about 100.

2,600–3,300 diapers in the first year

Go easy on the newborn size. Many babies outgrow it within the first month, and a big baby can skip it. A pack or two is enough.

Sizes 2 and 3 last the longest. Together they cover about 9 months of the first year, so they are the safest sizes to ask for.

A mix of brands is useful. Diapers fit every baby a little differently, and a few brands at home show which one fits before you buy big boxes.

Worked out from how many diapers a baby uses a day at each age and how long babies usually wear each size, so it is an estimate. Weights are US sizes.
